It would be difficult in New England to find a view in the meadows to the west.

Every person in quest of a sur burban residence in the vicinity of Boston, should devote at least one day to a samble over Hyde Park. The wondering growth and the extensive scale upon which improvements are going forward, cannot fall to inspire the visitor with the conviction that this is fast growing into one of the most delightful, thrifty and prespectual cities in the State.

The agent or assistants will go with visitors who wish to examine houses or lands at most any hour of the day.
